The Demon Warrior Fights Back!
By Paul Dale Roberts aka The Demon Warrior

The latest volume of this fascinating series tackles a huge range of intriguing mysteries. Paul Dale Roberts holds an Associate Degree in Criminology and served in the US Army's Criminal Investigation Division (CID) - Drug Suppression Team; so is well-qualified as an investigator. Come and join a real-life Fox Mulder and his wife, a real-life Dana Scully (Deanna Jaxine Stinson) as they open the real-life X-Files." Nick Pope - UK Ministry of Defense UFO Project 1991-1994.

'Paul Dale Roberts is certainly one of the most renowned and respected figures in the field of paranormal research today. However, he is more than just a paranormal investigator, he is a Fortean explorer who ventures into the unknown realms of ghosts, demons, UFOs, and cryptids. With his extensive background in criminology, military intelligence, dancing, and comic books, he brings a unique perspective and a wealth of knowledge to his work. Along with his wife, Deanna Jaxine Stinson, a psychic medium and author, he co-owns Halo Paranormal Investigations and has also written a number of books and articles about his explorations into the weird and strange. " - Tim R. Swartz, Paranormal Researcher and Author // Amazon.com: Tim R. Swartz: books, biography, latest update

"Together with his lovely wife and companion Deanna Jaxine Stinson, the Demon Warrior battles the forces of fear, ignorance, and superstition to learn the truth behind tales of ghosts, monsters, and alien invaders. Who knows what mysteries lurk in the haunted houses, places and minds of California? The Demon Warrior knows." Legendary Paranormal Author, Brad Steiger

"Paul Dale Roberts, the man, the myth, the legend." Lori Schulz, Radio Hostess of the Dirt - 1410 KMYC

"With over 2000 investigations under his belt, some of his investigations are stuff of legend. Roberts is prolific with his paranormal adventures and writing, along with his beautiful wife Deanna Jaxine Stinson. He is an icon in the paranormal industry, a true phenom." Paul and Deanna just may become the next Ed & Lorraine Warren!" Mark Greer - Sacramento Scenic Photographer.

Special Report:
I was emailing Tony Harris of the History Channel show The Proof is Out There. I showed Tony pictures of a ghost apparition in Sedona, Arizona. Tony gave me the direct email contact of his producer. The ghost pictures were finally shown on a TV show called "Paranormal Caught on Camera".

Do UFOs, Cryptids & Ghosts all Connect?
Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

As a Fortean Investigator, I have investigated everything that I consider as "paranormal" from ghosts, demons, cryptids and the UFO/UAP phenomena. A few of my paranormal investigators have asked me..."do you think that UFOs connect with ghosts or certain cryptids?" My answer is "yes", I truly believe that all paranormal incidents connect one way or another. People wonder why we have never captured a Bigfoot, if they exist. I believe that Bigfoot and many other cryptids are interdimensional entities. Bigfoot is able to go from its reality to our reality. Bigfoot may come to our reality to build a few nests, eat some berries and then return to its own realm. I am retired from the California Department of Fish and Willdlife. I have talked with many hunters, falconers and scientists that submit documents for scientific collecting. I remember a scientific collecting application came through our office. A team of scientists wanted to hunt Bigfoot in the Mount Shasta area. The application was turned down, because our government believes that Bigfoot is a myth. Talking with the scientist, he told me that he also believes that Bigfoot is an interdimensional entity. If his permit was approved, he believed he could probably locate "walking patterns" of Bigfoot, where his team would probably locate some nests and torn branches. Many native Americans believe that portals are located all over the Mount Shasta area and that is why many people have vanished while camping or hiking in the area. A Wintu elder told me that the portals are used by "spirits" of deceased Wintu warriors and family members. The portals are also used by Bigfoot and extraterrestrials. Dory Manchester, a hunter from Colorado says that while hunting in the Mount Shasta area, he saw a landed UFO and the extraterrestrials were working alongside 2 Bigfoot creatures. From what Dory could tell, they were gathering up plants. Dory said this incident happened in 1984 and it's an experience he will never forget.

A place that cryptids, UFOs and ghosts all come together is Lake Tahoe. In 1979, when I was a professional dancer for Jeff Kutash's Dancing Machine, I lived in Lake Tahoe in a cabin with the "Dancing Machine". One of the dancers was like me. He was interested in cryptids, UFOs and ghosts. On one particular night after we performed the first number for Cher's debut of performing solo, we celebrated by going "Tessie" hunting. Lake Tahoe's Tessie is a legendary lake monster, often described as a large, serpentine creature, similar to the Loch Ness Monster. The myth has roots in folklore from the local Washoe and Paiute tribes, though the modern "Tessie" name gained popularity later, with first-hand accounts dating back to the 1970s and 1980s. While no physical evidence of Tessie's existence has been found, the legend persists in local culture and tourism. While surveying the lake, we discussed on why there was so much paranormal activity at this location. Lake Tahoe is part of the Nevada Triangle. Lake Tahoe is also part of Gold Country. In the Nevada Triangle planes, people disappear. In Gold Country many UFOs are seen. Is it because in the ancient past extraterrestrials were interested in our gold? Case example: the Anunnaki were interested in harvesting our gold to save their planet from the effects of a depleting ozone layer. As for ghosts. Ghosts are everywhere in Lake Tahoe and the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Bigfoot is seen all over the Sierra Nevada Mountains by hunters, hikers, tourists and campers. During my time with the California Department of Fish and Wildlife, a hunter told me that in 1987, his uncle encountered a Bigfoot. The Bigfoot was staring at him and the hunter shot him. When the projectile hit the Bigfoot's chest, the Bigfoot blew up in sparks. If this claim in true, then it would probably mean that Bigfoot can transfer from matter to energy and energy to matter. Just like Einstein said.....E+MC2. Energy and mass are equivalent and interchangeable, related by the speed of light squared. It signifies that mass can be converted into a vast amount of energy, and vice versa, because the speed of light squared is a massive number.

To find the connection if UFOs connect to ghosts and cryptids, all we have to do is listen to one abductee claim that aliens described humans as vessels for souls. That would mean that aliens would be aware of the soul. When the soul leaves the deceased body and if that soul can muster up enough energy, it can manifest into something that we can see. What we would be seeing is the ghost of that deceased person. Lake Tahoe and the surrounding area is a smorgasbord of haunting activity. Many ghost stories and haunted locations are associated with the Lake Tahoe area, including the spirits of the Donner Party at Donner Memorial State Park, the ghost of recluse George Whittell at Thunderbird Lodge, and celebrity hauntings at the Cal Neva Lodge. Many paranormal reports come from specific locations such as the Thunderbird Lodge, Hellman-Ehrman Mansion, and Cal Neva Resort, as well as from historical sites like the old Truckee Jail and the Tahoe Biltmore. Additionally, folklore includes the legendary creature "Tahoe Tessie" that is said to live in the lake. Yes, Lake Tahoe has plenty of ghosts. It has plenty of cryptids, like Tahoe Tessie, Bigfoot and even some werewolves! As for UFOs, there have been reports and sightings of UFOs near Lake Tahoe, with documented cases including a resident who videotaped an object in 2006 and multiple mentions in online discussions and local news. The remote and mysterious nature of the region may also contribute to the lore surrounding unexplained phenomena. I believe Lake Tahoe has many "portals" and cryptids and ghosts probably use the same portals to go from point A to point B. UFOs have been seen diving into Lake Tahoe. The reason why no one has ever caught Tahoe Tessie is because she can enter the same portal that UFOs use. I also believe that Tahoe's Tessie is an interdimensional being.

Another place I investigated is Sedona. I talked with various Native American citizens from the Hopi, Yavapai, Apache and Navajo tribes. Many of the tribal members I talked with said that Sedona has many portals and that is the reason why people see spirits, UFOs and a multitude of cryptids. Some of the cryptids seen are the Mogollon Monster, which is Arizona's very own version of Bigfoot. It is the most well-known cryptid in the region, described as a large, bipedal creature, over 7 feet tall, covered in reddish-brown or black hair, and emitting an overpowering, foul odor. Sightings often occur in the pine forests along the Mogollon Rim, which is a short distance from Sedona. There has been a report of an encounter with the Invisible Porcupine Man. You can see the story of this cryptid here: www.unexplained-mysteries.com/forum/blogs/entry/33548-the-invisible-porcupine-man-of-sedona-arizona/ Another cryptid seen in Sedona is the Skinwalkers. Rooted in Navajo tradition, these are witches believed to have the ability to transform into animals (commonly coyotes, wolves, or owls) by wearing their skins. Reports of Skinwalkers in northern Arizona are common, and the topic is treated with seriousness and respect within the culture. Ant People and Blue Men are probably extraterrestrials. Local folklore around places like Bradshaw Ranch and Sycamore Canyon mention mysterious "Blue Men" and the "Ant People" (the latter from Hopi and Paiute legends, believed to have saved ancient humans). Some people theorize that the Ant People and Blue Men were left behind on Earth and colonized areas near Sedona. The Bradshaw Ranch, a now-fenced-off paranormal hotspot within the national forest, is a central location for high strangeness, including UFOs, interdimensional beings, shadow people, and the so-called "Electric People". While not traditional cryptids, unexplained aerial phenomena (UAPs) and mysterious lights are a massive part of Sedona's lore. The area is considered a major hotspot for UFO enthusiasts, with frequent reports of strange crafts and orbs of light. A Hopi elder explained to me that the portals in Sedona are used by extraterrestrials, spirits and various cryptids.

HAUNTED SHETLAND ISLANDS

Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

You are probably wondering where the Shetland Islands are located. The magical Shetland Islands are a group of islands off the coast of Scotland, lying between Orkney, the Faroe Islands, and Norway, marking the northernmost region of the United Kingdom. The islands lie about 50 miles to the northeast of Orkney, which is 110 miles from mainland Scotland, and 140 miles west of Norway. Sophie Valtille when visiting her relatives in Scotland, made a trip over to the Shetland Islands and discovered that there were many ghostly tales that are verbally passed down from one local to another local. Before we get into some of the supernatural tales from the Shetland Islands, let's take a look at some of the history of these islands. With the population expansion happening in Scandinavia, it led to a shortage of available resources and arable land. This led to a period of Viking expansion, so the Norse gradually shifted their attention from plundering to invasion. Shetland was colonized during the late 8th and 9th centuries, the fate of the existing indigenous Pictish population is somewhat of a mystery. Modern Shetlanders still retain the Norse DNA with many family trees showing the Norse patronymic system. When visiting the Shetland Islands, you will observe a strong Norse presence. Below are some of the paranormal activity that you may find on these islands.

Windhouse (Mid Yell):
Often cited as one of the most haunted houses in the UK, this ruined 18th-century mansion is built on an ancient burial ground, a fact confirmed by the discovery of 13th/14th century skeletons buried nearby. It is said to be home to multiple spirits. According to Sophie Valtille, The Lady in Silk is one of the most popular. Legend has it that the Lady in Silk fell down the stairs and died by blunt force trauma to the head. Her rustling silk gown can still be heard. Then we have the Tall Man, not to be confused with the Tall Man in the movie Phantasm. This Tall Man is a tall figure, that sports a dapper black coat with top hat. He is seen prowling the grounds before vanishing into walls. Sophie Valtille said with her peripheral vision she saw the ghost dog that haunts this house. The Ghost Dog howls and barks during the night. Sophie says that the ghostly dog actually brushed up against her. Sophie feels the ghostly dog is a protective spirit. Another ghost is the Servant Girl Ghost seen climbing an invisible staircase. Her figure is very distinct, and a lot of witnesses think they are seeing a real person, until she vanishes are walks into a solid wall. Reports of paranormal activity at the house include objects moving on their own, unexplained cold spots, disembodied voices, and flickering shadows. The house is linked to a history of tragedies, including the deaths of children from the owning family. Disembodied children voices and laughter is sometimes heard, along with sobbing and crying. A local legend tells of a shipwrecked mariner who encountered and killed a "Trow" (a type of fairy or troll) that haunted the house, but the haunting activity has persisted. The Shetland Islands not only has ghosts, but they have a couple of weird cryptids, the Trow is one of those weird cryptids, the next one you can read about below.

The White Wife Statue

The other weird cryptid is the Finnmen, they are shapeshifting sea-dwellers. The Finnmen can be a malignant or mischievous fairy and is related to the Scandinavian troll. Often depicted as short, ugly, and shy, and typically nocturnal. Finnmen are said to have a fondness for music and may lure or kidnap musicians. It was considered unlucky to see a Finnmen, but auspicious to hear one speak. At the White Wife Statue a local musician was playing a flute, and two locals saw a Finnmen carry the musician away in a large duffel bag. The Finnmen headed to the sea and the musician was never seen again. The White Wife statue by the road on the (Island of Unst) marks the spot where the spirit of a young woman, possibly murdered while trying to reach a village, is said to appear to drivers. Another story is that this woman drowned herself in the Loch of Watlee after years of abuse and now appears to lone male drivers (especially in red cars) in the passenger seat before vanishing.

A statue was erected near the Brig of Watlee to represent this ghostly figure, though its appearance has changed over time. Location: Near the Brig of Watlee on the Island of Unst.

Busta House (Mainland):
This historic hotel is rumored to be haunted by several ghosts, including a "Blue Man" in the library and a servant lad in the kitchen. The main ghost said to haunt Busta House Hotel is Barbara Pitcairn, a young woman at the center of an 18th-century family tragedy involving love, deceit, and death. Staff and guests have reported seeing her and experiencing other paranormal activity. The legend of Barbara Pitcairn Barbara was the orphaned cousin and secret wife of John Gifford, the heir to the Busta estate in the 1700s. When she revealed her marriage to the Giffords, John's mother, Lady Gifford, cursed him, saying she'd rather see him dead than married to Barbara. Sophie Valtille says that while at the hotel, she felt a lot of cold spots and heard disembodied footsteps walking behind her, as she adventured down the hallway. Sophie discovered that John and his brothers drowned in Busta Voe. The curse took a life of its own. John's body was recovered and, according to legend, laid at his mother's feet. Lady Gifford later had Barbara's marriage certificate stolen and hid it to prevent Barbara's son, Gideon, from claiming his inheritance, triggering a 93-year lawsuit that ruined the family. Barbara died young and is believed to have returned to the house to search for her son and her lost love. Then we have a Busta House Woman in White. Sophie says that a head chef at the hotel has reportedly seen a lady in white walking through the kitchen on three separate occasions. A waitress reported turning off all the lights in the dining room, only for one to come back on, revealing a woman who then stood up and walked into a wall. One guest reported receiving a phone call at 6 a.m. with no one on the line, an experience they found chilling. When refurbishing a room, a hotel owner made a flippant comment about offending "Barbara." Afterward, the hotel was plagued by a week of problems with heating, plumbing, and electrics until the owner apologized to the ghost.

Lerwick:
The main town has its own tales, including the "Dutchman's Leap" cliff where a sailor and pony reportedly fell to their deaths, and former hospital buildings where staff and patients reported sensing spirits or hearing disembodied footsteps. Below are some haunted places in the town of Lerwick:

Shetland Library (Lerwick):
Reputedly haunted by a man in a brown coat. Staff have claimed that books fly off shelves and disembodied footsteps are heard in the basement of the building, which was formerly a church.

Twageos House (Lerwick):
This imposing 18th-century house, which was demolished in the 1960s, was the source of many ghostly happenings. Occupants frequently reported hearing unexplained footsteps, knocks, and a servants' bell system that would chime on its own. The ghost was often associated with the sound of a wooden-legged fiddler.

Graveland (Lerwick):
The area is rumored to be haunted by the restless spirits of shipwrecked men and a "black dog-like beast". Also, a Finnman was seen at Graveland in Lerwick. This Finnman was described as tall and thin with a gloomy face and sad eyes. Locals say that this Finnman possessed magical powers and was able to make ships invisible. The Finnmen was able to make phantom fleets that were able to row between Norway and Orkney with seven strokes. Locals says that some Finnmen are very territorial and will punish fishermen who enter their waters, but may be appeased by a Christian cross on the boat's hull, as they dislike signs of the cross.

SPECIAL REPORT: Cary Stayner
I once brought a psychic named Delaney Orcott to Laguna Del Sol to investigate areas of this resort, that may be producing negativity from serial killer Cary Stayner who was known to frequent this resort. Delaney felt strong negative energy at the jacuzzi. Come to find out, this was exactly where Cary hung out at to meet women.

Email: jazmaonline@gmail.com

During my lifetime I came across many celebrities. More by accident than on purpose. I want to name a few that I met and explain to you how I met them. Let’s start off with Edward James Olmos. As a government worker, he was involved with a function at my government office (Secretary of State) and I saw him walking on the sidewalk, along the building and I stopped him for a picture with my co-worker (Kendra Larry). Real nice guy.

Hopalong Cassidy. When I was a small boy living in Fresno, my dad took me to a parade. We came across Hopalong and he picked me up in the air and said I was a good-looking boy. Arnold Schwarzenegger. I first saw Arnold filming a movie at the Mayfair Hotel in Los Angeles, he was filming True Lies. His stunt double was on a horse and the horse collapsed and slid on the carpet. The horse slid so hard, some of his thigh leg skin peeled off. Later I met Arnold when he became Governor of California, and I shook his hand and came across him 3 more times. One time saw him in the basement (Secretary of State/SOS) with his security guards and he stared right at me. Ted Nugent. Met Ted when he was sitting in my Branch Chief's office (James Fong, Branch Manager - LRB - License Revenue Branch - California Department of Fish and Wildlife) getting his hunting license. Shook hands with Ted, nice guy. Took a picture of Ted next to my employee Nicole Stowe.

I never met Barbi Benton, but my dad did. He used to work in the same government building (Employment Development Department - EDD) as Barbi and one day he asked Barbi: "Barbi, since you are Hugh Hefner's girlfriend, when are you going to quit your State job?" Barbi said: "Not yet, but getting close." While Arnold was governor, I rode the SOS elevator once with his wife Maria Shriver, nice lady.

I saw Leonard Padilla, Bounty Hunter in action with his men as they were trying to apprehend a criminal at a State (Secretary of State) building. When I lived in Citrus Heights, Tony "The Tiger" Lopez was dating my roommate, so I met him a couple of times. I met Edwin Meese's brother, who worked at a government building (EDD) that I worked in. While walking near K Street Mall in Sacramento, a limo pulled up to the red light and in the back seat, window rolled down was Dick Cheney. Dick looked at me and smiled.

At a nightclub in Citrus Heights called Bobby McGee's I made eye contact with Mad Dog Buzz Sawyer, a wrestler. Buzz Sawyer was focused on me, and I was focused on him. I walked up to him and told him I would watch him wrestle on TV, when I was stationed in the Southern States. We talked and became friends. Buzz on one night at this club, lifted me up and carried me all around the night club. I asked Buzz to please, put me down, it was embarrassing. While working at Harrah's Tahoe, met Cher and shook her hand, I was living and working with Jeff Kutache's Dancing Machine. Cher was very nice and polite. At Hilton's Tahoe, met up with Bill Cosby and the Allman Brothers. My most memorable encounter was with Erin Moran as she was playing the slot machines. She asked me what slot machine was hot for winners. I pointed out a couple, she lost her money and she looked at me and said…"you liar!"

While I lived in Palm Springs for a while, I went to a night club and Dennis Farina sat next to me. Dennis was not a star yet and I told Dennis that I was applying for movie roles in Los Angeles and that I had the Guinness Book of World Records for Disco Dancing, in which I danced for 205 hours. I was sort of bragging and Dennis looked at me and said: "It looks like you have a foothold in the entertainment business, looks like you will make it!" Dennis said he was trying to break into the business too. Well, I never made it in Hollywood, but Dennis did. A few years later, I was watching Dennis on TV playing one of the Hillside Stranglers! Dennis who wasn't a braggart, makes it in the business and I didn't. Oh well, serves me right.

My ex-wife Patricia Mary (Mitchell) Roberts and I, went to Hawaii for our honeymoon. We ran into Don Ho and Patricia went up to him and Don Ho grabbed Patricia and kissed her on the lips. On our trip to Hawaii, met up with Detective Kam Fong Chun aka actor Chin Ho of Hawaii-5-0. Chin Ho was sitting in first class and Patricia and I, went up to Chin Ho and shook his hand and told Chin that we loved watching Hawaii 5-0.

Sammy Hagar: The year: 1974. Location: Nurnberg, Germany. Attended the Sammy Hagar concert. I went with a team of my fellow soldiers. My buddy next to me tossed his Army cap towards Sammy. Sammy on stage does this incredible leap and catches the Army cap. Sammy places the cap on his head and finishes his whole routine wearing my buddy's Army cap. My buddy was so thrilled about this. I had a hard time calming him down.

Concerts: I saw War, Tower of Power, Santana, Curtis Mayfield at Winterland in San Francisco. Attended a rock concert in Stockton, CA in 1972, and watched Buddy Miles, Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young. The Stockton Skulls (motorcycle club) started some fights, the Stockton police came, and tear gassed us all. Saw Heart in concert with Karen Jean Caruso. I snuck in for free. When Heart started singing Crazy on You, they made it rain. Then they sang Magic Man and Barracuda and the thunder hit. It was magical. Saw Janet Jackson in concert at Sacramento Memorial Auditorium. Saw Lou Rawls at the Red Lion Inn in Sacramento. Saw Jimmy Page with Jeff Clifford in Vacaville, Ca outdoor concert. My stepson Jason Randall Porter and I, went to Cal-Expo to see Britney Spears and Pink. At the California State Fair, I saw Rose Royce and the Staple Singers. As the Disco King of Sacramento, I was always allowed to sit in the VIP section with my entourage at Galactica 2000. Then one night CHIC came in and I had to give up my VIP seats. I met everyone from CHIC, they were cool. When they walked in, the DJ was playing "Chic Chic Cheer!", then later "Good Times." Then all through the night, the DJ played songs like "Everybody Dance" and "Dance, Dance, Dance". I had a blast partying with CHIC.

When I was the Disco King of Sacramento, I performed with my dancers at Club Lido (which is now Grand Island Mansion). While partying at Club Lido the Tubes were performing and 2 members of Fleetwood Mac flew in by helicopter and partied with us at Club Lido. I do not know who the 2 Fleetwood Mac musicians were. We ate caviar at this party. As the Disco King, I had full access to the Club Lido Rolls Royce.

When I was stationed in Seoul, Korea I ran into all of the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders at a hotel lobby store. The cheerleaders were staying in the same hotel as me. I managed to talk to 3 of the cheerleaders. They were doing a USO show.

Meeting Kristy Swanson and Malcolm McDowell
I met Kristy Swanson aka Buffy the Vampire Slayer and Malcolm McDowell in 2009 at Witchapalooza (at Cal-Expo). I had a press pass and was able to interview both Kristy and Malcolm. Before the interview, I was told that I would be interviewing Roddy McDowall and came prepared with questions for Roddy, like asking Malcolm on what it was like to meet Elizabeth Taylor. Malcolm looked at me and said..."you have the wrong McDowell". I was so embarrassed and immediately started talking about Clockwork Orange and if there would ever be a sequel. Malcolm got focused on the Clockwork Orange subject and the interview after that went smoothly. Talk about embarrassing. Paul Dale Roberts

When I was going to Fremont Jr. High School in Seaside, there was one day that all of the students got excited, because Michael Parks (Then Came Bronson) was at a Seaside gas station filling his motorcycle gas tank. The cameras were rolling at the gas station. I watched Clint Eastwood film "Pink Cadillac" in Sacramento. My co-workers Jeff Scott Clifford, Kendra Larry and I, were extras in the movie "Gone, But Not Forgotten" starring Brooke Shields and Lou Diamond Phillips. The camera crew had us sitting at an outdoor table drinking coffee. In front of us Lou and Brooke were talking. They cut our scene out...sigh.

Met Suzanne Somers at a USO show in Seoul, Korea. A photographer yelled at her while she was on stage and says..."this guy (me) is from your hometown of San Bruno!" Suzanne called me up stage, hugged me and asked if I used to go to this small store in San Bruno. We took a picture together.

Met Erik Estrada at a casino in Sacramento County. He was playing cards.

I went to Los Angeles to attend the premiere of PJ: A Journey of the Heart. Met up with John Heard; Vincent Pastore and Howard Nash. At one time Howard Nash was thinking of making a movie out of my comic book "The Legendary Dark Silhouette" and every year, Howard would pay me $100.00 for the rights to The Legendary Dark Silhouette.

I was a guest on Art Bell's Midnight in the Desert with host Dave Schrader of the Holzer Files.

Well, that is some of the encounters I had with various celebrities during my lifetime.

MY BROTHER-IN-LAW DON KRUGER

Don Kruger (baritone, pianist, conductor, composer) is a graduate of The Juilliard School (Pre-College Division: Piano & Voice), Princeton University (BA in Music, with honors), Westminster Choir College (MM in Church Music, with concentration in Voice and Conducting), and Cambridge University (MA in Music Analysis and Composition). After graduation in England, Mr. Kruger taught at Woodberry Forest School (an all-boys boarding school in central Virginia), serving as Chairman of the Music Department, conducting choirs and teaching academic courses in music history and theory. Mr. Kruger was also the conductor of two community groups, the Montpelier Chamber Singers and the Madison Choral Society, frequently performing a capella concerts and choral/orchestral masterpieces. Later, he was Choral Director and Voice Professor at Mary Baldwin University, Staunton, Virginia, while serving as Director of Music at Bethany Lutheran Church. During his time in Virginia, Mr. Kruger frequently studied at Vocal Pedagogy and Performance Institutes with Richard Miller at Oberlin College and Conservatory to further both his teaching and performing activities, and also studied with Dr. Miller at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria. In 2006, Mr. Kruger moved to Daytona Beach, Florida, taking care of his aging parents, directing a choir at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, and teaching private voice and piano students. In the Daytona area, Mr. Kruger also served at St. James Episcopal Church, Edgewater United Methodist Church, and Westminster By-The-Sea Presbyterian Church with duties ranging from choral director, pianist, and baritone soloist. In 2015, he started a full-time music studio in Ormond Beach, Florida for voice and piano students (both children and adults), and in 2020 Mr. Kruger moved to the Greenville area with his wife, teaching voice and piano virtually now through Majesty Music Academy from his home in Travelers Rest.

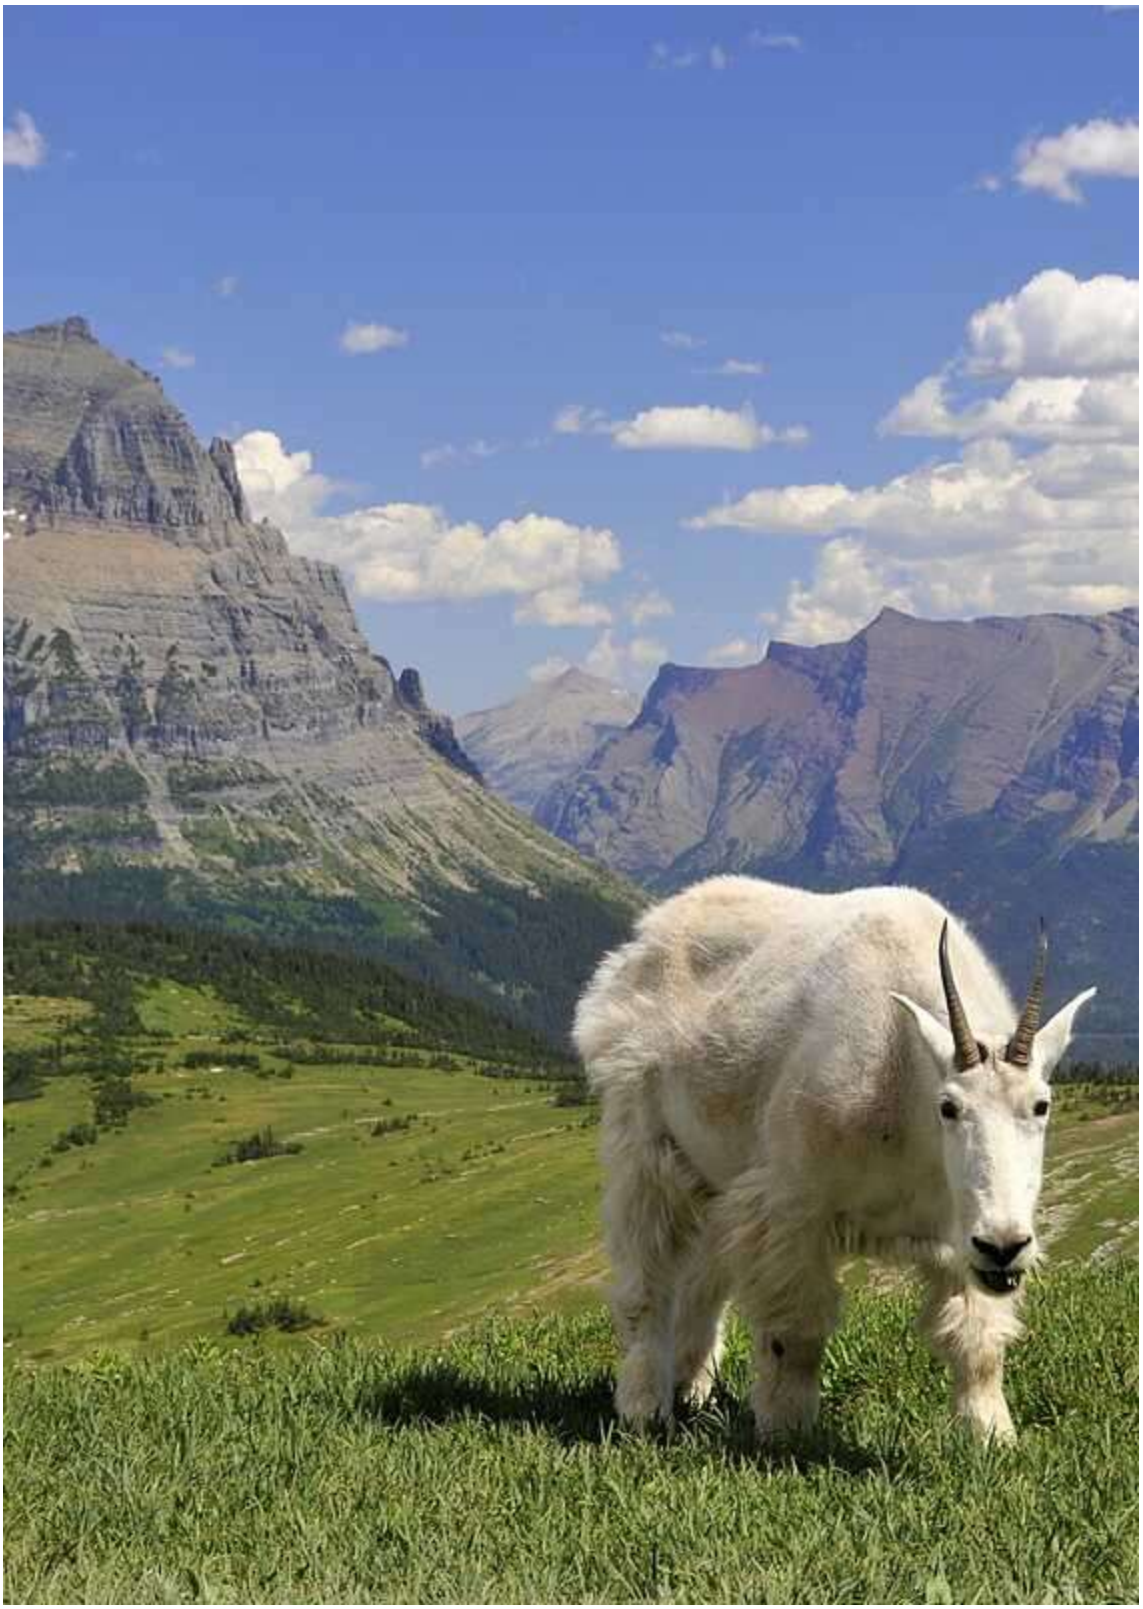
Special Note: Deanna Jaxine Stinson came close to meeting President Donald Trump when he came to his rally on June 2, 2016. Deanna was supposed to be one of the promoters for Trump at the rally and the day that she was supposed to attend the rally, she was sick and did not go.

HAUNTED GLACIER NATIONAL PARK

My wife Deanna Jaxine Stinson lived in Deer Lodge, Montana and during her time in Montana, she frequented Glacier National Park. She was curious about the hauntings at this national park. Deanna being a psychic medium has seen and witnessed many ghosts at this national park. Here is what is said about this National Park.



There are many ghost stories and legends surrounding Glacier National Park, particularly involving its historic lodges. Some claim that the

are haunted, with tales ranging from ghostly apparitions to mysterious noises.

- Belton Chalet

Built in 1910, this hotel near the park's west entrance has numerous reports of paranormal activity. A former guest reportedly encountered a miner's ghost named "Lungren" in his room. Other stories include a prankster ghost called "Bob," disembodied screams, and moving objects.

- Many Glacier Hotel

This 1915 hotel is considered one of the most paranormally active locations in the park. Reported sightings include a woman in a red dress, mysterious noises in Room 308, and objects moving on their own. A former winter caretaker shared stories of a wine bottle mysteriously appearing in a locked hallway.

- Lake McDonald Lodge

Ghostly occurrences have been reported here as well. One security guard reported seeing a woman in old-fashioned clothing, and a night auditor once felt fingers running through her hair. Guests have also heard loud arguments from vacant balconies.

Mysterious trails and roads

Beyond the lodges, Glacier's wilderness also has its share of strange tales.

- Going-to-the-Sun Road

Park personnel have reported seeing the ghost of an old, grizzled man with a beard, dressed in dated clothing, walking along the road at night. When they turn back for a second look, the man is gone.

- Belly River

Stories exist of a mysterious cave in this area of the park, though details are scarce. Some locals have said they have seen Shadow People near the cave entrances. Deanna saw a man in hiking gear go near the cave and then vanished.

    - Conrad Mansion Museum

This historic Kalispell mansion, which offers ghost tours, is known for its Halloween-themed events. One of the ghosts that haunt this mansion is a little boy that carries a red ball and sometimes bounces the red ball against the wall.

- Garnet Ghost Town

This well-preserved 1890s gold-mining town is now a ghost town filled with old buildings, cabins, and a saloon. It has a gift shop and guided tours. Deanna has seen ghostly miners walking around at this ghost town. One miner ghost that Deanna saw was carrying a pick-ax.

NEXT PICTURE: I recently saw this movie "The Menu" and must say this movie had me on the edge-of-my-seat wondering what would happen next. I say…give this movie a try.

NEXT PICTURE: Loved this movie. Predators are excellent hunters!

CREEPY CREATURES AT KUANG SI FALLS, LAOS

When I went to Bangkok and Pattaya Island in Thailand, I remember looking down at the jungles of Laos, as we were flying over Vietnam and Laos to get to Thailand. I would wonder if there were any mysterious cryptids in the Laos jungles. Well, later on in life, I learned there were many cryptids in the Laos jungles.

My neighbor Atsawin Chanh is from Laos and he tells me that he lived in a village near the Kuang Si Falls in Laos. There were many reports from the locals of these three types of cryptids that would be seen at the Falls.

- Nguoi Rung (Khi-Trau): This is a large, ape-like creature, often described as being covered in dark fur, though sometimes with bare feet and hands. In the Laotian border region, it is called Khi-Trau ("buffalo monkey"). Reports include claims of it breaking into houses, stealing food, and abducting people.
- Phim Nyuj Vais: This is a Hmong monster from the jungle, described as a shape-shifter that takes the form of a long-tailed monkey. Its appearance is sometimes preceded by a loud screech and a gust of wind.
- Hmong "Vampire": This is not a traditional Western vampire. According to Hmong folklore, these creatures do not drink blood for sustenance but steal it from the dead to use for black magic. Their presence is sometimes indicated by the presence of mice that are not visible to regular people.

A LOOK AT ELVES AND FAIRIES

Yep! I am snatching up two more titles to place under my belt. Call me an Elficologist and a Fairyologist. Because I am going to give you, the reader a fast history lesson on elves and fairies. Have I ever hunted fairies and elves? Well sort of. When I went to Ireland, I was looking for the elusive leprechaun. Of course I never found a leprechaun, but I did travel down fairy path at Dublin Castle. Then the most recent Mount Shasta excursion, in which a dozen paranormal investigators went looking for ghosts, UFOs, Bigfoot, the Last of the Lemurians and fairies. Dwarfs and fairies have been seen going in and out of the caverns near Mount Shasta. But, I believe these dwarfs and fairies have their origins to the infamous 'grays' of UFO lore.

Special Note: This article is sprinkled with little people. Try to guess from the pictures which little people are either Spriggans, Pixies, Trolls, Fairies, gnomes and Brownies. Give it a try and see if you can guess correctly.

There is a lot that connects fairies to UFO lore, let's look over some of the examples.

Fairy Circles could be interpreted in modern times as crop circles or UFO landing spots.
Fairies are known to be mischievous at times. They have abducted humans. Grays are known to abduct humans.
Fairies have been known to fly in lighted globes. Aliens man UFOs.
Fairies are known to snatch human babies. Aliens experiment with human DNA and are responsible for false pregnancies. Aliens are known to create hybrids, half human and half alien species to populate their dying race.

Fairies cause temporary paralysis. Aliens also cause temporary paralysis.
Fairies cause time loss and the forgetting of the abduction experience. Abductees of the 'grays' make claim to the same thing.
Fairies return their abductees to the point of origin. Aliens do the same thing.
Some people say that fairies at times look reptilian. Some aliens are known to look reptilian.

Hmmm..is that a coincidence? To be truthful, I believe there is a connection between UFOs and fairies. I also believe that UFOs are connected to our Norse - Roman/Greek - Egyptian - Mayan - Aztec myths, but that's a whole other story. Let's briefly talk about elves.

Elves and fairies on certain levels can be somewhat similar. My theory is that elves are a branch from the fairy bloodline. Elves originated with Germanic mythology. In fact if you travel to Europe, there are many people that still believe in elves. Elves were known as minor nature and fertility gods. They were looked upon as youthful and having great beauty. They are somewhat small in stature and have pointy ears. They are known to reside in underground places, caves, wells and springs. Some elves embrace the forest. In Germany's Black Forest it is rumored that a race of elves live in this mystical forest. Other reports from the Black Forest is about a man that was covered in fire, that actually flew from the forest trees to a church steeple. When the townsfolk tried to stone him, he flew away never to be seen again. Some people have called this man on fire, the Fire Elf. It is thought that elves are immortal and have magical powers.

Since I believe Elves and Fairies are actually in the same family, we will look at the variety of fairies and elves, placed together conveniently for you the reader.

Altheia: She is the fairy of revelation. She is protector of criminals that harbor in deception and fraud.

Asrais - Are known to be small delicate female fairies. When these fairies are captured and exposed to sunlight, they will melt away into a pool of water.

Banshee - When someone close in the family is dying, a Banshee, (female spirit) will make a wailing sound. This wailing sound is the signal that death is approaching.

Blue Ladies, Ice Virgins & Mountain Fairies: All are in the same family. They are the size of a wasp, in fact humans mistake them for wasps. They do not like humans touching their hair and will lead humans astray into the Valley of Forbidden Shadows.

Blue Trolls - These are worker trolls, used by high command elves for slave labor. Note: Small blue creatures have been seen by abductees that are used for workers for the 'Grays'.

Boggarts: A breed of half elf and half fairy. These creatures were the same ones that gave a sleeping liquor beverage to Rip Van Winkle (written by Washington Irving), which caused him to sleep for 20 years.

Bogles - Villainous goblins that will do harm to liars and murderers.

Brownies - They love humans and their households. They are known to be benevolent and harmless. If anything, they are helpful.

Bully Bogey: Inspires brutality and oppressive actions. Known to have a fetid breath.

Dwarfs - They are short, stocky and strong. They mature at the age of 3 and at the age of 7, they are old, bearded and gray haired. If they are struck by sunlight, they will turn to stone. They practice magical spells and potions that at times make them immune to daylight.

Dryads - Spirits that live in the trees. They prefer oak trees. Druids utilize Dryads for inspiration.

Elves - There appearance makes them look like a normal man or woman. Small in stature and have pointy ears. They are divided by the Seelie and Unseelie Courts.

Elvenkind of Shangri-La - A Tibetan mystical land that are guarded by the invisible Elvenkind of Shangri-La. These elves carry swords, spears and shields and will defend Shangri-La.

Elven Warriors of the First Blood - They seek conquest of lands belonging to other little people. Their weapons are the bow and arrow, spears, swords, shields. They are able to go from our world into another dimension through a dimensional rift. When people see them on their horses, it looks like they are vanishing, when in reality they are entering another dimensional world. They are known to wear long flowing capes and frightening masks.

Filendieres & Spinners of the Night: They are average human size. They are known to punish the lazy. They will encourage people that work hard and give them strength. They appear as ghosts. They are seen as ladies of long white dresses, extremely beautiful, pale with blonde hair.

Fir Darrig - (Pronounced Fear deang) They play horrific jokes that may cause a human to have a stroke or a heart attack. They can assume any visage they wish.

Flower Myrths - Harmless fairies that live off the pollen of flowers. They are mistaken for humming birds, until people take a closer look and see a human like creature with beating wings.

Gnomes - Earth Elementals. They live underground and guard the treasures and history of the Earth. Gnomes are wonderful metal workers, especially of swords and breastplates.

Goblins - Goblins are an uglier species of fairy. They are small and malicious, and usually band together as they have lost their abilities to operate independently. Usually they are controlled by a Mage for evil doings.

Gobbly Gooks: Small shadowy creatures that usually hide in human's closets and underneath their beds. They are known to enter your dreams and nightmares and will pull pranks on humans.

Gremlins - Tormented WWII pilots by messing with the mechanisms of their warplanes, causing some warplanes to crash.

Gwragedd Annwn - (Pronounced: Gwageth anoon) Are traditionally Welsh water fairies, who occasionally take human men for husbands.

Gwyllion - A Scottish water fairy. They are mostly seen as a hairy men or hideous female spirits who waylay and mislead travelers by night on the mountain roads. Mountain fairies like to sit on rocks on either side of a mountain path and silently watch people as they pass by.

Helpful Hob: These little people help in the kitchen and love to eat bread and buns.

Hobgoblins - Small, grotesque but friendly brownie-type creatures.

Hobbit - Fictional little people created by author J.R.R. Tolkien. See the books The Hobbit and Lord of the Rings.
Knockers (Buccas) - These creatures protect and look over the welfare of miners. They will even making knocking noises where rich ore can be located.

Leprechauns - They have a fond appreciation of gold and will horde gold away from humans. If you capture a leprechaun, they are commanded to grant you one wish and share their wealth with you. They can be tricky and can use your wish against you, if you don't command the wish correctly.

Mer-People- Also known as mermaids. They dwell in the water and are half human from the waist up and have a tail of a fish. They are mesmerizing singers who sometimes lure fishermen to their deaths (See the Lorelei of Germany that lured sailors to their deaths against the rocks of the Rhine River). Also called the Murdhuacha (Pronounced: muroo-cha) or Merrows.

Naga: They can appear as a cobra. When in human form, the female Naga is a graceful and elegant dancer. They will lure a male human to them with their dancing and swiftly turn into a cobra and strike a lethal blow.

Nang-faa & Phi-bird: They are tiny. Their skin is golden. They have jet black hair and are gorgeous womenfolk. Some of their body like arms and legs are made up of feathers.

Nymphs: Two type of Nymphs. The Nereids, which are tall. The Limoniades which are small and live on flowers. Other Nymph breeds are the Dyrads, who live in forests. They are 2 to 3 feet in height. They are known to protect trees.

Pixies - Pixies can shapeshift to look like hedgehogs. They are mischievous fairies who enjoy playing practical jokes on humans. They also love to steal horses to ride.

Phouka - Can appear in various animal forms and are considered to be dangerous.

Primrose: Primrose fairy will touch certain rocks with a primrose and open gateways to fairylands.

Queen Brighid the Bright: She is from Tir Tairngiri - The Land of Promise. She carries a wand, one half of the wand will dealt out authority, while the other half will dealt out purity and justice.

Redcap - One of the most evil of the old Border Goblins. He lives in old ruined towers and castles, particularly those with a history of wickedness. He re-dyes his cap in human blood. Redcaps have been known and seen around the Tower of London.

Shefro - Male fairies who wear green coats and red caps.

Sídhee (shee) - The name for fairies and their subterranean dwellings. A barrow or hill which has a door to a beautiful underground realm of the Tuatha or fairies. J.R.R. Tolkien used this concept with the Hobbit.

Sluagh - The Host of the Unforgiving Dead. The most formidable of the Highland fairies.

Spriggans - Are fabled to be ugly, grotesque and small in their natural state, but can inflate themselves to gigantic proportions. Spriggans are an infamous band of villains, skilled thieves, thoroughly destructive and often dangerous. They are capable of robbing the dwellings of humans, kidnapping human children and exchanging the human child with a repulsive baby Spriggan.

Tempestaries - They are gigantic to human size. They live in cloud castles and are known to eat Souffles & vol-au-vents.

The Willies & the Dancers of the Mist: They are the size of a 'sheaf of mist'. They are vaporous creatures and are known to eat mist. They can shapeshift to a doe or a swan.

Trolls - Have an aversion to daylight. They are frequently observed performing a curious lop-sided dance called 'Henking'.

Trows - Similar to the Trolls and have an aversion to daylight. They also perform the dance known as the 'Henking'. Trolls and Trows are perhaps cousins. Trolls have a flatter head, while Trows have a more angler head.

Urisk - Is a solitary fairy who haunts lonely pools. He will often seek out human company, but his frightful appearance will scare off humans that come into contact with his kind.

Water Fairies - Are the providers of food, nourishers of crops and takers of lives. They combine beauty with treachery and lethality. They can be friend or foe.

Wart Wogs - Grotesque elves that stand at 4 feet in height. They are known to have warts all over their bodies. When they touch a human, they will pass on the wart infliction to their human victim.

Wind Banshee - A beautiful female elf that is invisible to the naked eye and will travel with the wind. When she stops and manifests in front of a human she will talk in a soft voice and tell the human about an impending disaster or tragedy that will occur in their life. She will then fade with the wind and vanish.

Yellow Blurker: Filled with negativity, known to enter your dreams and nightmares.
At some point of time, I plan to travel to Iceland, an island that is filled with little people that live beneath the stones. In Iceland there are elves, lovelings, gnomes, trolls, huldufolk and light fairies. Icelanders take little people very seriously and when they think they are invading the space of little people, they will reroute a shopping mall to keep the little people happy. If you ever go hunting for little people, use my list to identify what kind of little people you are dealing with. You can then make claim that you are an Elficologist or Fairyologist that has the ability to identify and deal with the small folk you have encountered. Happy little people hunting! Bag one for me!

Ghost of Peltier Road Bridge

Written by Debbie Talani

Sometimes with stories, you have to tell the past in order for the present to make sense. This is such a case. The date is January 1981. The Central Valley tule fog formed that evening casting an eerily quiet feeling over the valley. A car with three people is driving down Peltier Road near Lodi, California. One of them is being strangled with a belt by the person sitting behind them. The person sitting in the back is Michael Morales. Morales was armed not only with a belt, but a claw hammer and a 7-inch kitchen knife. The driver, Ricky Ortega, is the jealous lover of the victim's boyfriend and cousin to Morales. Ortega, in his rage and jealousy against the victim, asked his cousin Morales to get rid of the victim. Morales was eager to comply.

Morales thought of ways to kill the victim and practiced cinching a belt around a female roommate's neck, waiting for Ortega to inform him when the hit would take place. The call finally came. Ortega called the victim for help and said he would pick them up later that evening. Once the victim was in the car, Morales was in the back seat armed with his weapons and ready. He was also stoned and agitated from finishing off some cheap liquor and smoking a cigarette laced with PCP.

Ortega drove the car down Peltier Road and when they were a few miles out of town, Morales suddenly wrapped the belt around the victim's neck, cinching it tight. The victim fought back with such force, the belt broke. This only further agitated Morales, causing him to grab the claw hammer and began bashing the victim's head.

The victim pleaded with Ortega to help but he did nothing but drive. The victim attempted to fight off the attack as Morales instructed Ortega to keep driving while he continued to bash in the victim's head. Morales bashed the victim's head 23 times, crushing the base of her neck. The victim's arms and hands were bloodied as she tried to defend herself.

Ortega pulled over at the intersection of Bender and Peltier Roads with an unconscious victim who was slumped against the passenger door. Morales hopped out of the car and stated it would be a waste of a good piece of ass. He dragged the unconscious victim out of the car and instructed Ortega to drive away and come back in 15 minutes. Morales dragged the victim face down across the road into a vineyard. There, with the Valley tule fog obstructing view, Morales stripped the victim's body except for the bra and sweater. He flipped the victim over, pushed the bra and sweater up to her neck and raped her in the cold, damp dirt.

When Morales was finished raping the unconscious victim, he took the 7 inch kitchen knife and plunged it 4 times in the victim's chest, killing her.

Now, fast forward to February 2006; Morales is sitting on San Quentin's Death Row, scheduled to be executed Tuesday, February 21, 2006 at 12:01 am. Ortega was also caught and sentenced, but to LWOP â€“ life without parole. The victim's family has signed up to witness the execution, but the victim's mother has changed her mind. Instead, she has written a poem.

Fast forward again to almost exactly 2 years later to February 16, 2008; I âm on my way to my friend Shauna Kinchen's house who is also a ghost hunter. We made plans to have dinner then head out to Peltier Road Bridge. I had been told that it is haunted. The story goes that two brothers long ago, lived across the street from one another. Their relationship soon soured turning into a legendary Hatfield and McCoy feud. One of the brothers killed the other, and dragged his brother's body to Peltier Road Bridge burying him. Soon, he too passed away and it is said that an apparition of an old man, carrying a shovel and a lantern is spotted alongside the bridge. I was intrigued; I wanted to find out as much information as I could on this bridge. Come to find out, my research resulted in the Morales story rather than the brother's feud.

After dinner, Shauna and I head to Peltier Road off of Highway 99. It is almost 9:30 pm and quiet dark. We are armed with flashlights, audio recorders, a digital camera and an IR video camera. We easily found the intersection of Bender and Peltier Roads and armed with the knowledge of Morales dragging the victim into a vineyard, we thought we could find the area the crime took place easily. How wrong we were. There are vineyards on all four corners. Some looked very, very old, other vineyards looked quiet new. We focused on the older looking ones staying in that area mostly, being as the crime took place 27 years ago.

As we conducted EVP work, we heard a coyote, which sparked more coyotes to cry out. It was eerie standing on the side of a road in the dark, hearing nothing but the cries of coyotes. The moon was almost full, so we didn't need our flash lights to see. The light cast by the moon gave dimension to the trees off on the southwest corner of the intersection, as well as the old and new vineyards.

I took digital pictures and filmed with my Sony IR video camera. Toward the end of our investigation, I pulled out the poem the victim's mother had written and read it out loud. Shauna then crumpled it up and threw it into the vineyard we felt the crime had taken place. Shauna told the victim that it was hers to do with how she saw fit. It was the least we could do after knowing how the victim lost her young life.

Both Shauna and I then turned on our flashlights and ended up disturbing a very agitated bird. We could hear it, but could not see it. We knew it was circling us due to the high-pitched calls it was making as it was circling us. We decided to continue our investigation by heading to the bridge.

The bridge is about 500 yards from the Bender and Peltier Road intersection, but there wasn't any place to park or for that matter, to walk. There are no sidewalks on the bridge, only a thin curb. We would have ended up getting hit since cars were traveling down Peltier Road at a very fast speed. Shauna and I would have ended up being ghosts ourselves! We both decided it wasn't safe to investigate the bridge at that time. Like Jason Hawes of TAPS says "When in doubt, get the hell out, which is exactly what we did.

Although we were disappointed we couldn't investigate the bridge, we were excited about going over our audio and video to see if we had captured anything. Shauna reported back saying she didn't capture any EVPs (electronic voice phenomena). On one of the pictures I took of Shauna next to a tree we were drawn to, there is a red light going horizontally over her head. I watched the video and determined that it was the taillight of a car passing by. I did capture one EVP at the very beginning of our investigation. I had just finished mentioning to Shauna that it was eerily quiet when a whisper is heard. I can't make it out, but it is there, as well as on the audio of the video recorder. Was it the victim? Was it Morales? I don't know. It's possible.

Back in 1981 when Morales killed his victim, I was just a mere teenager who listened to Rick Springfield's Jessie's Girl, REO Speedwagon's Keep on Loving You and watching Dallas on CBS. was just starting my high school career and didn't know anything about Morales, Ortega or their victim, despite the crime happening in my area. I now know the victim's young life was halted unnecessarily and her family's lives would be forever changed.

As I drive home after dropping Shauna off, I remind myself that life comes full circle. In order to understand the present, you must visit the past. I thank the Universe and Fates for what I experienced this evening and I eagerly wait for the next opportunity to investigate. Until then Stay Scared.

The Sandra Wooding-Limon Story: A Story of a Haunting in Bakersfield

As I sit here pondering is there life after death. I can only assume, there must be an afterlife. Einstein came up with the sound theory that E = MC2. Energy can be converted into matter and matter can be converted into energy. Energy is a substance that cannot be destroyed. All information from energy is sustained for eternity. On one website, called "Ask a Rocket Scientist", I asked if Earth were to be sucked up into a blackhole, would that mean that all information on the existence of mankind would be destroyed? The history of Earth would be gone? The answer from the rocket scientist was 'no'. Due to the fact that energy cannot be destroyed, it can be altered, but not destroyed. So all of the tidbits of a scathing email that you wanted to send to your boss, you deleted it from your computer, but it still exists in the vastness of cyberspace. On the quantum level we are all energy creatures. Break us down to atoms and on the quantum level I would be able to place my hand right through your body and out again. Henceforth, in Star Trek we see the scattering of our atoms through a teleporter and reappear again intact with Capt. Kirk ready for battle. So, if our matter bodies have intelligence, then why can't a pure energy being have intelligence? Why couldn't the aura that surrounds our body consume the intelligence that our physical corporal body has? When we die, the aura leaves our body. The aura is our soul. A soul that may decide to follow the light into the next realm. An energy realm, we may call it heaven, we may call it hell. Or a soul that refuses to go into the light and remains on Earth, with unfinished business to attend to. We call this a haunting.

As a writer, I am a conduit for people to tell their stories. I listen, I make the decision that a story will become immortalized through my writings. On a particular night at Cache Creek Casino, at Club 88, a woman by the name of Sandra Wooding-Limon asked for me to write a story of a haunting that happened to her. A haunting that she can't get out of her mind. As we talked during the music that the band Masterpiece was playing, songs like "Body Talk by The Deele", "Chase Me by Confunkshun" and "Good Times by Chic." She was familiar with my paranormal investigations via H.P.I. (Haunted and Paranormal Investigations) of Northern California. This is the story she relates to me:

At the age of 7, she lived in a home in Bakersfield, California, off a street called Bel Torres. Her home was situated across the street from the neighborhood park. The home was not elaborate like the Amityville Horror home, it was a simple 3 bedroom house. There she lived with her brothers and sisters, her mother and stepfather. When she first moved into this home, she was automatically scared of this house. When she moved in, she felt this eerie feeling. Night after night, she felt a presence as she tried to sleep in her bed. She felt someone was standing over her bedside. As the hauntings continued, her bed covers would be thrown off of her. This was too much for a little Sandra, she insisted to have a night light on. She had a harder time falling asleep. She would be afraid to sleep. She would see shadows walking near the hallway and across her bedroom. The entity or entities seemed focus on her. While she felt the hauntings, her sister, age 6 was not disturbed and would sleep soundly, while all the while she was being terrified by this unseen force. When the TV was on, the walking shadows seemed to make their presence known even more. The doors would move on their own accord and the cabinets would open and close on their own. One night, she turned around and the rocking chair kept rocking on its own. This was too much for Sandra. Her family knew that Sandra was going through these traumatic disturbances and after one year, the family decided to move away. Sandra was absolutely terrified and it didn't help when she also heard on the news that the Zodiac was at large. At this young tender age, she was terrified of a hooded serial killer that was stalking his prey, that prey was 'people' and the ghosts that were in this Bakersfield home. Sandra is now an adult woman, but thoughts and memories of this home still haunt her to this very day. She will never forget a particular storm that came into Bakersfield and during that night the hauntings came on very strong, her bed covers were taken off of her, the shadows on the walls were everywhere and the cabinets kept slamming open and shut during the storm. Not too long after the storm is when her family decided enough was enough. It was time to move. After having this experience and moving away from the house in Bakersfield, she was terrified to go to her grandfather's house. She didn't know if the house was haunted, but it seemed to be haunted. Her grandmother died in the house and her grandfather would have a shrine that included lit candles and many patron Catholic saints near and around the lit candles. This in itself was spooky. She related to me that her grandfather always kept the house dark, she would hear things move around in the house, when there was no one there. Her aunt lived in her grandfather's house. Her aunt was strange, she was into the gothic lifestyle and had black lights, psychedelic paraphernalia in her dark bedroom. Sandra now strives to seek out the positive, she likes a lot of lights, she avoids the darkness. This childhood experience has effected her life to this very day.

Sandra due to the nightmares of her childhood experiences once consulted with a now defunct paranormal group called S.P.I.T. (Stockton Paranormal Investigation Team), but didn't feel satisfied with their counseling. She feels if her story is told, it may eliminate the inner demons of her traumatic childhood experience. Good luck Sandra, your story is now told.

As I close this story, I only wonder if spirits may use the writings of others as their conduit to tell their story. Once in Rolling Stone Magazine, there was an article on the fact that Jim Morrison of the Doors had appeared to many people after his death. Well, this story wouldn't have phased me, except for the fact that my first wife Karen Jean Walker/Caruso had related to me that she sat on a couch with Jim Morrison. Jim told her to accept life and embrace it. Of course this was the spirit of Jim Morrison, because Jim Morrison had died years ago. When Karen told me this story I laughed. When I read the Rolling Stone article, I almost fell out of my chair. Could Karen be telling the truth? In 1999, I had a dream that I saw my mother, who died in 1987. In this dream, my mother had a strange looking man sitting behind her with glasses and a brief case. My mother told me to tell the story of my father's connection to Mickey Cohen, a well known gangster with ties to Bugsy Siegel. Behind her the man standing behind her said: "Please tell the story." I never told the story, until now. My father a former tax investigator opened up a case that was pending since the 1950s. The reason it was pending is that the government accountant investigating the case was killed by the mob for trying to collect on State taxes. My father who just handled a case in collecting State taxes from the Church of Scientology, that also owed federal taxes to the IRS, took the challenge of reopening this case. When meeting the mob in Los Angeles via a corporation that they owned, the mobsters took my father out to dinner and wrote him a check. It was an easy collection of State taxes owed, but a government accountant in the 50s lost his life over this matter. Perhaps the deceased accountant didn't want his life to be forgotten and consulted my mother to tell his story? I don't know. I don't know if my over active mind created this appearance of my mother and the strange man behind her. Was that strange man behind her the accountant? Then why didn't he tell me his name? Or does he feel confident that anyone looking into this story, will discover his name and complete the history of his encounter with the mob. Perhaps I am the conduit for living people and deceased people to tell their unfinished stories. I am here. I am listening.

I have been on some strange cases, but this is one of the strangest cases I have ever been on. But, before I get into this story, I want to thank Nancy Bradley for hosting the Noscars at her home, in which awards were given to Gold Rush Ghosts and HPI core members for their contribution in the scientific approach of ghost hunting. The awards were given out by Nancy Bradley - Celebrity Psychic and Shannon McCabe - President of HPI. There was some good roasting of members from each group. It was a fun and exciting event and I was proud to be part of it.

Today is Saturday, February 16, 2008. Got the Ghosttracker filled up with gas and headed over to pick up Chris Grissom, new HPI Lead Investigator. Chris treated me to dinner at Da Nang Vietnamese Restaurant 10499 Folsom Blvd, Suite C in Rancho Cordova. If you ever have a chance, check out their menu, kick back and try their cuisine, it's scrumptious. While dining at this fine establishment, Chris and I, went over the facts of this unusual case. I was familiar with this home, because Chris and I consulted with the occupant Sarah. Sarah wanted a demonologist to bless her home and I took on the task of blessing her home. When I blessed the home, I asked for any entities that resided in this home to leave, I went through the ritual of strategically placing holy water in the areas of the home as prayers were conducted for the expulsion of any entities that plague this family. Chris was notified by Sarah that the entities of her home were still there.

My blessing of this home was unsuccessful. It was now time for an HPI core member team to investigate to see what was causing the disturbances that Sarah claimed to have witnessed in her home. Chris and I, met up with the team. Paranormal investigators for this private investigation were: Chris Grissom - Lead Investigator/Technician, Paul Dale Roberts - Ghostwriter/Demonologist, Holly DeLaughter - Professional Photographer and Kirsten Shelly - Researcher/Historian. Chris gave us all a briefing at Starbucks at Old Placerville/Bradshaw Road. What was funny, as I was waiting for Holly to show up to the meeting, I was calling her and then I heard the loud ringtone of "Thriller by Michael Jackson", it was the ringtone that Holly programmed into her cellphone when I call. All the investigators had a hearty laugh. It just made me want to get up and do the Michael Jackson zombie dance and the Moonwalk. Equipment used: video camera, TV monitor, digital cameras, digital audio recorders.

Chris did a marvelous job as a lead investigator, he has an analytical mind and commanded the investigation with perfection. As we entered the home, we were greeted by Sarah. - occupant, John - occupant's boyfriend and Joy - friend. As Chris and the team set up their equipment, I found a place where I would be comfortable in interviewing Sarah, John and Joy.

Sarah relates to me that she has lived in this residence for 2 1/2 years. After living in this home for 1 week, the door mysteriously flew open by itself. She once saw a man in a black suit with brown hair outside of her apartment and as she watched him, he vanished. She has seen a girl with long brown hair - 15 or 16 years of age and a boy with dirty blonde hair - age 12 appear in front of her and they also vanished in front of her eyes. She tells me that she feels a heaviness in her home that can last all day and into the night. She has heard dishes rattling, wet tennis shoe sounds of walking in her kitchen at 4am, she saw a priest with white collar in her bathroom, she believes that on her property there was once a church and that there were gold mines that are under her home.

There was discussion of a possible portal near or around her home, because John, Sarah and Sarah's son saw a UFO above their home. John described it as a bright UFO, possibly a mother ship in which 5 or 6 little lights came out of the ship and flew in an erratic form, zipping here and there and changing colors from blue to red. The middle of the mother ship spun around like a rhythmic rotating engine. The lights or discs that came out of the mother ship took off at a high volume of speed.

Now here is when things kind of get interesting, Sarah tells me that she has taken pictures of a little girl with almond shaped eyes. Perhaps she is also being visited by 'grays'? Other strange activity is when John asked to be touched, Sarah was touched instead. Besides hearing fingernail scratching sounds on the mirror, knockings on the door, mysterious footsteps, Sarah has heard the clock chime and discovered the clock had no batteries.

Sarah enthusiastically tells me that she had heard the fingernail sounds of scratching in her bedroom, crackling sounds, that reminded her of the popping of knuckles, as if there was someone standing there making the knuckle popping sound next to her. She calls one entity the Lady in Mourning, because the entity appeared in front of her wearing a veil and one half of her face was covered, with only her chin being exposed. Her clothing was dark and she wore something that resembled a tie. As she watched the Lady in Mourning, it also too vanished. She goes on to tell me that besides doors flying open, the air being thick at times, feeling strange sensations in the bedroom, her dishwasher knob turning on its own, the sound of glass being scratched, the smell of sulfur and brimstone, a strong energy being felt in the bathroom, she also witnessed tall shadow people that kept their faces looking towards the ground and one of the shadow person was wearing a hood. What she described is what other people describe Shadow People to look like, which I found interesting. She either had previous knowledge of this or she actually witnessed this. She claims she had no previous information on Shadow People.

Holly was drawn into the boy's room, she felt some form of energy. Holly and I, took a zillion or so pictures and we did capture orbs. Orbs are not any kind of reliable evidence, orbs can be generated by digital light refractions, bugs or dust. I can't take credence on orb activity. We also caught a few orbs on the TV monitor darting here and there. Holly discovered that the house cat was chasing a moth in the household, which could have generated the image of an orb on our video camera. This is a possibility that can't be overlooked.

Here is what John relates. He says he has heard dishes rattling, he has heard strange sounds through the air vents like cellophane being crumpled. He has felt like he is being watched. He has seen shadows moving around. He has felt the sofa move on its accord when he has been laying on it. He has felt a pressure on his leg that was unexplained. Sarah and John explained to me that they have blessed their home, they had a priest bless their home and they had me bless their home and nothing is working. The entities at times will leave their home for a couple of weeks and come back. I asked John if he ever had any other paranormal experiences and he told me that when he lived in Pennsylvania he lived in a haunted home, where doors would fly open on their own. John said that at this new home, he was once mimicked by a shadow creature. If he scratched his head the shadow creature would scratch it's head and so on and so on. He once saw a horned creature and when the horned creature appeared, he smelled sulfur and brimstone. He thought immediately that this must be a demonic entity. When this demon appeared, John almost fainted. I learned from John that he is a follower of my articles and that he is familiar with Holly's famous full body apparition photograph at the Georgetown Hotel.

While I was preparing to interview Sarah's friend Joy, Holly was debunking certain shadows that were captured in the mirror. Holly had the occupants move away from the mirror and the shadows were no longer captured in her photography. Holly also worked on the debunking of faces captured in the bathroom shower area. The faces were a trickery of light done by the reflection of the camera's flash.

Joy has been to the residence three times. She tells me that her mother and grandmother are paranormal investigators and now she is a paranormal investigator-in-training for another group. She also claims to be a sensitive. She has picked up male energy in the bedroom closet area. She has seen something transparent with a face moving about. She has taken pictures of what appears to be a little girl's face. She recorded an EVP, which sounded like the digital audio recorder was being smacked around by an unseen force. She has heard eerie tapping sounds. Another EVP was the sound of a girl's faint voice that sounded like it was in the middle of a conversation and later she thought she heard the name Tiffany.

Kirsten took an unusual photograph of a shadowy form. Kirsten recreated the photograph and discovered that it was a shadow from her leg. Kirsten also felt an uneasy feeling in the boy's bedroom, similiar to what Holly felt. Holly felt more drawn to that particular room.

Now it's time for all of the investigators to gather their crucial evidence and submit their evidence to Chris to analyze. If anything is found, we will list it on www.HPIparanormal.net

I must say that this was a strange case, because if this case has any substance, it would mean that there is some kind of portal that equals to the Skinwalker Ranch that is located near or around this home. A portal that is bringing in possible aliens, shadow people, ghosts and everything else that goes bump in the night.

Subject: The Leger Hotel and the Haunting Crime Areas of Leonard Lake/Charles Ng

QUOTE

Sat Jan 26, 2008 2:47 pm

With scouting missions, you really don't know what will occur or if you will be successful with a scouting mission. For example. Someone calls and says..."hey, Paul, you should check out the F Street Boarding house, I heard that it's haunted." Key words: "I heard". This person says they heard it was haunted, second hand information. With a scouting mission, you round up a team and check to see if the place is haunted or not. Sometimes you will have success, sometimes not. If there is success, then you can determine if you want to conduct another investigation into the area. This October 6, 2007, Saturday, I gathered my team at Starbucks on Howe 'bout Arden. I gave my briefing on Leonard Lake and Charles Ng. Basically what I said is that Leonard Lake was a survivalist, he built an underground bunker underneath his ranch home. He thought there would be a nuclear holocaust and by kidnapping women and bringing the women to his bunker, he and Charles could repopulate the world. Instead, they took 25 women to this underground bunker, tied them up, sexually assaulted them, tortured them and killed them. These heinous crimes were caught on video. When the seasoned detectives saw the videos, they were appalled at the ghastly sights. Leonard committed suicide, while his buddy Charles went up to Canada and killed 8 more people before getting arrested. He was extradited back to California, where he now sits on deathrow. I had Michele Stump - paranormal investigator/researcher fill in any gaps to my story and had Chris Grissom - video technician/paranormal investigator chime in on any key points of these serial killers.

Let's take a roll call: Paul Dale Roberts - Lead Investigator - Ghostwriter; Jenna DeLaughter - Paranormal Investigator-in-Training; Holly DeLaughter - Sensitive/paranormal investigator; Angel Kesti - Paranormal Investigator-in-Training; Stefanie Belson - Sensitive - Paranormal Investigator in Training; Donna Reynolds - Sensitive, Paranormal Investigator, Chris Grissom - video technician, paranormal investigator, Michele Stump - Researcher, Paranormal Investigator. What is unique about this team, two of our sensitives are Wiccans, Donna Reynolds with the Sacred Fire Circle and Stefanie Belson with Luna Grove, she is a heredity witch and her mother was considered a healer.

Angel Kesti volunteered to drive us all in her van, while Holly and her daughter Jenna wanted to follow us to the various sites. Before, I went on this mission to the unknown, I received a visit from a sensitive named Kathryn Newbold who gave me some insight about this trip and felt positive results would occur. After my visit with Kathryn, I knew this would be a good scouting mission. I made sure there were plenty of snacks for this trip and picked up Ritz crackers, Farmer John ham, salami, pepperjack cheese, Pepsi. When I was getting these snacks, Melissa who works at Bel-Air and knows that I am a ghost hunter assisted me with my groceries and said she wanted to relate a story to me. She said that when her mother died in May 07, she heard the sound of keys. When her mother was alive, she would always jingle keys. It was as if her mother was keeping an eye on her. Melissa's sister also thought she saw her mother immediately after her demise. Melissa and her sister haven't experienced any more manifestations of their mother or any key jingling. Melissa felt by telling me this story, I would be the one person to understand her story. I completely understood, because when my mother passed away, my father saw my mother glide down the hallway and after that never experienced anything again. Most likely Melissa's mom and my own mother went into the light and are in a better place now.

Sorry, about that, sometimes I get wrapped up in other stories and get a little bit off track to the now-and-then story about this road trip to the town of Wilseyville, where Leonard Lake owned a ranch with a torture chamber bunker. On our ride to Wilseyville, we kept thinking how Hollywood horror movies always have a group of people on a road trip in a van, heading out to some small town, laughing all the way down the road, telling stories, then bad things start happening. On our trip to Wilseyville, we almost ran out of gas, our cell phones were dead, even my Verizon was dead in some parts of the trip and I was looking around for my 'network' and they were no where around. We almost hit a mother deer and her two calves as they crossed the street, we almost got stuck on a muddy hillside and we went around a lot of curves pretty fast zipping through a stop sign that popped out of no where. Some of the locales of Wilseyville looked somewhat odd and I kept thinking of that weird guy in Texas Chainsaw Massacre that would always clean your windshield, even after you tell him to stop, while the driver is trying to get directions. Finally we did locate 2 local cops and they never even heard of Leonard Lake. As we continue through these winding roads…did I just see a sign to the Crystal Lake camping site? No, just my imagination, I watch too many horror movies!

Whoa..whoa……why am I jumping ahead of myself and telling you about the Leonard Lake/Charles Ng investigation, when I didn't tell you about our mini-investigation of The Leger 'Miami of the Sierra', 8304 Main Street - Mokelumne Hill, CA 95245. Michele Stump our researcher blurts out..."hey, that the Leger, it's reputed to be haunted!" I tell everyone, let's make a pitstop. I introduce myself to Jane Canty, owner of The Leger and she gave us a personal tour of the hotel and explained the history of the hotel to all of us. She even opened up the wine cellar and we were able to explore this area of the hotel. The Leger has been featured on the Discovery Channel. Jane explains that sometimes keys wind up missing, there are blue orbs that are seen. There is a spirit that everyone calls 'George'. The hotel once burned down and it was rebuilt. As I was walking around this hotel, Angel Kesti was telling me about her own experiences, she now lives in a haunted house and she constantly hears footsteps. Angel is very much aware of hauntings and gives me her insight to this hotel. Jane shows us George's room and George's portrait. George's room is Room 7. At one time a ghost-hunting group came to investigate and their camera tripod was mysteriously thrown to the ground. While we were taking digital photos, many of the investigators were capturing orbs on their photos. Holly, a sensitive was focused on the Leonard Lake investigation and while driving to The Leger had to tell me that she was getting images of Leonard Lake and Charles Ng partying with girls that they would meet at local bars in Jackson and driving them up to Leonard's ranch in Wilseyville. She was having a hard time getting these images out of her mind. I talked with a gentleman that was staying in the hotel and he looked at me and says…"did you know that Black Bart used to stay in this hotel, I think I am staying in the room he stayed at!" Jane Canty mentions the legends that stayed in this hotel, but never indicates that Black Bart stayed here.

As we continued with our tour of The Leger, I was told stories by Jane Canty about Rosa Leger, that wore a long white dress and she was a very proper person, she is sometimes seen at this hotel. Jane feels that there are 3 entities in this hotel. Jane provided email copies from some of her guests and as I was looking over one of the emails, a guest says that he heard an electrical buzzing while in bed and felt something touching his legs, it felt like bread crumbs landing on his leg and then felt electrical charges on his body. Another patron in Room 7, said she felt something pushing on her legs while she was trying to sleep, she was very scared from this experience. Some guests have heard the sound of children giggling in various rooms of the hotel. Another email, a patron experienced a 'shadow person' gliding from one area of the room towards the window and disappeared. Other patrons describe objects moving around, the smell of old aftershave mingled with copper, a woman's hair lifted from her scalp and suspended in mid-air in front of family witnesses. It appears from these emails, that many patrons experience paranormal activities in this old historical hotel.

As I explored this hotel, there are jail bars on the bottom windows. The hotel was once a jail and courthouse. The lavish banquet room was once the old courthouse. There was a fire in the hotel in 1875. I was taken to Room 11, which is known to be haunted by a female phantom. The HPI team were telling me they were capturing orb pictures in Room 7 and in and around the hallway. Stefanie was feeling a lot of human activity in the hallways. Patrons have said that they have heard a little girl crying in Room 3 or in Suite #1. Luminaries such as Grover Cleveland, Mark Twain and the bandit Joaquin Murriata have stayed in this hotel. When Jane told me that Joaquin Murriata stayed in this hotel, the image came in my mind of the wanted poster of Joaquin, it read: "Wanted, the head of Joaquin Murriata and the hand of 3-Finger Jack!" Joaquin did lose his head, when he was killed. Teddy Roosevelt of the Rough Riders once stayed here too. Jane says that she thinks there are 3 entities in this hotel, but by looking at the patron's emails, there seems to be a whole lot more. The history of this hotel is amazing. There was a hanging tree out back. So a criminal could be heard in the courthouse, land himself in jail and later hanged out back at the hanging tree. How convenient for the criminal. As I entered the cellar, I was told that patrons feel there is a teenage boy that haunts the cellar, something tragic happened to this boy in the cellar and not too many people want to stay in this cellar long. The place does feel quite creepy as I visually surveyed this underground dwelling.

Michele Stump and I, did some more exploring near and around The Leger, we stopped over at the Town Hall on 1901 Main Street and the Adams & Company/I.O.O.F. Hall, we discovered that The Leger was built in 1875 and it was built on the site of Hotel de France. Hotel de France was built on this site in 1851.

Some of the sensitives reported feeling a woman's presence, a sad lamenting sensation, or hearing people talking in the larger rooms.

I talked with Celeste Garamendi, an employee of the hotel and she tells me that one night while cleaning up the bar area, the grate fell to the floor fell on its own. Her sister Cherie who also works at the hotel had her arms full and the doors mysteriously opened by itself, allowing her to enter the other room without opening the doors herself. Wow!! The Leger is a place that we definitely need to come back and do a full blown all night investigation as I related this to Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe, President of HPI on my cell phone. Shannon was working the information booth at the Northern California Renaissance Fair this day and told me she met my father Paul M. Roberts and his wife Cindy Anderson/Roberts who also attended the Renaissance Fair near Hollister. Shannon enjoyed hearing about my scouting mission and was completely fascinated with our experiences at The Leger. This report not only was being related to Shannon McCabe, but also to R.V. Scheide of the News and Review who is incorporating this story in his HPI Halloween story.

Back on the road again and we were heading for Schaads Lake Road/Blue Mountain Road where supposingly Leonard Lake and Charles Ng deposited some of the charred bones of their victims and took the lives of some of their victims near and around this area. What was unusual is that Stefanie related to everyone in the van that she felt like the cabin with the big cinder block was Leonard Lake's ranch home, she got this strange sensation as we passed it. Well, during this same time Holly, another sensitive was telling her daughter in her car she was feeling the same thing about this ranch house that we were passing. Both sensitives felt the same thing passing this ranch house and were in two separate vehicles! That was amazing! As we explored the area, I didn't pick up anything on my Listen Up sound enhancer device. Holly feels she needs to investigate this one location and starts snapping pictures and when we look at her digital photo, it looks like the beginning stages of a full body apparition near a tree! The photo is incredibly strange! Holly takes a second photo of the same area and the photo is normal, it's just a picture of the tree and surrounding bushes.

We stayed up in this area for a while exploring and saw a strange man in a blue pick-up with a woman in the passenger seat. The woman would not make eye contact with us, but the strange looking man driving was staring at all of us. We all thought he had a crazy look on his face and that creeped us out more than any ghosts. It was time to look for a gas station. We found that gas station at Jackson. We decided to make one more stop. We stopped at the National Hotel in Jackson and I introduced myself to the owner. I told her I was a journalist with HPI and she smiled and said…"I know who you are." (because I wrote an article about National Hotel in regard to an all night HPI investigation at this hotel). I asked her if I could bring my team up and explore the hotel. She looks at me and smiles again…"Paul, you are welcome to do whatever you want, have fun." So, I took the team up to the various rooms and we snapped many pictures and tried to capture some EVPs, before heading home. The EVPs have not all been analyzed yet and I am still getting photographs sent to me for this article.

Angel told me that when she was driving home, she thought she may have brought a ghost home with her, because as she was driving, she heard a woman in the backseat of her van yell…'aaaggh!' in her ear. She was concerned about this. I explained to her that most ghosts are harmless and she probably has nothing to worry about, but to keep me informed. The only ghost in recorded American history that has ever been connected to a death, is known as The Bell Witch. When I was driving home, I don't think I had any ghosts in my car, but I thought about what happened this day and listened to 'Knocking on Heaven's Door' by Bob Dylan. I kept thinking this turned out to be a very good scouting mission with some spectacular results! Now, I must go over the evidence. Before I close this article, make sure to be on the lookout for Shannon McCabe and Nancy Bradley's DVD documentary Ghost Girls, for more information go to XXXXXXXXX and see Shannon's interview at Haunted America Tours at Well, I guess that winds up another investigation into the paranormal! Before I go though...Holly cracks me up, when I call her cell phone, she has a specific ring tone for me...'Mr. Crowley by Ozzie Osbourne!' She's a real card!

One of the things that is fun about being a ghost hunter for H.P.I. (Haunted and Paranormal Investigations) of Northern California is that I am able to head out somewhere, meet a potential client and listen to their ghost story. This Sunday, August 5, 2007, I was doing exactly that. I went to the quaint town of Davis and stopped over at Konditorei Austrian Pastry Cafe and waited for my potential client. Her name is Laura (Jeanne) Garman, she likes to be called Jeanne. Jeanne has a very bubbly personality and full of smiles. As I ate my buttered croissant and drank my vanilla bean coffee, I listened to Jeanne's stories. Jeanne feels she may be an intuitive, she picks up on things that other people don't pick up on. It appears that the paranormal may have followed her throughout her years. Jeanne is a single mother of 3 children and when she lived in a home in Spokane, Washington in 1989, she knew the home was haunted by a small girl ghost. She would hear constant laughing or sobbing. The house was over 100 years old and carried with it, a lot of history.

The sobbing and laughing of a little girl would continue, then one night she heard somebody climbing up and down the stairwell. She heard running footsteps. She cried out for her 8 year old daughter, thinking it might have been her daughter running up and down the stairs at this late hour in the night. When investigating, her daughter was sound asleep and there was no one around who could have caused the sound of running feet. Later on, Jeanne discovers buried correspondence, underneath some dirt, underneath the outdoor steps. As she went over the letters, she read on how two families were corresponding with each other and in the letters they were inquiring on the health of a little girl that had consumption (an old word for TB). She moved from Spokane to a home in Benicia. She moved into an old Colonial home. There was a cellar to the home and when she entered the cellar, she felt like something was dead in the cellar. It was an overwhelming feeling, she could not stay in the cellar to long. The cellar door would open by itself on a regular basis. One night she heard a woman's voice crying out to her...."Jeanne, Jeanne". This was enough for Jeanne, she now lives in Davis and has not witnessed any paranormal activity in her new residence. On this night paranormal investigator/scout Jennifer Baca came over and we set our goals in investigating three locations. First off, the East Lawn Elk Grove Mortuary off of East Stockton Blvd, Camellia Memorial Lawn at 10221 Jackson Road and finally the abandoned Ice Crystal Factory between 15th and 16th Street - on R Street. We brought along another ghost hunter, his name is Pika, a Jack Russell Terrier that belongs to me.

When we arrived at East Lawn Elk Grove Mortuary, we stopped by my mother's (Rose Marie Roberts) grave and I gave my respects. I also stopped over at my stepmother's parents (Mitchells) gravesite along with the Huft gravesite to give my respects. After my silent prayers, we started our ghost hunting. What is unusual about this cemetery is that there are turkeys wandering around the grounds and Pika had a field day chasing them. There was no unusual activity at this cemetery and we headed over to the Camellia Memorial Lawn. This is when things became strange. While we took photos and turned on our digital audio recorder, we started hearing voices and whistles. In one location of the isolated cemetery, I heard a distinct man's whistle, he was whistling a tune, it lasted for no more than 5 seconds. Jennifer didn't hear the whistle. Jennifer and I, both heard a woman's laughter, then we both heard what sounded like two children talking. The closest homes were one mile away. There was wind. So, could have voices been carried for a mile to our location, where we could actually hear the voices as if they were no more than 20 to 50 feet away from us? The woman's laughter sounded like it was no more than 50 feet away and it was a loud laughter. The man's whistle, sounded like it was no more than 20 feet away, in the opposite direction of the two houses that were a mile down the road. Was this truly a whistling wraith? There was a point of time, that Pika seemed focus on an area near a tree as if he sensed something. I checked to see if there was any animals in the tree and there wasn't any, but he kept looking at one area of the tree as if there was something there that only he could see. He finally got distracted to chase a couple of rabbits and one cat. Another time, I heard two loud knocks on a tree and I cannot determine what caused the two knocks. This was a very strange cemetery.

Our last destination was the abandoned Ice Crystal Factory. I was told it was once a fruit packing plant, but the sign says Ice Crystal, so I am not sure. This factory has been abandoned since the 70s and I was told that 2 men that worked there, were killed by the factory machinery. The story I was told that the two factory workers were taunted by the other factory workers because of their deformities. One of them, that was nicknamed Charlie Crooked Teeth, had crooked teeth. The other factory worker nicknamed Jimmy One-Eye, had only one good eye. Charlie Crooked Teeth and Jimmy One-Eye became very close friends. I do not exactly know the kind of machinery they were both working with, but the story goes that an accident occurred and they were both killed by the machinery. Other stories said that they were set-up and the machinery was sabotaged, this lead to their deaths. Supposingly, Charlie Crooked Teeth and Jimmy One-Eye haunt this factory. As we took digital photographs, we got some interesting orb pictures. I took a picture in an opening of a window and got 13 orbs in one photo, the next shot, there was no orbs. Jennifer took a picture at the location where my car was parked at and got some orb shots near my car.

I would like to do a further investigation of the Ice Crystal Factory and Camellia Memorial Lawn, both places seem to have some exceptional activity. Could the restless spirits of Jimmy One-Eye and Charlie Crooked Teeth still haunt this abandoned factory? Are they trying to find why they died sudden deaths. Could they be the orbs that seemed to have followed Jennifer and I, around the factory and later seen by my car? If so, Jimmy One-Eye and Charlie Crooked Teeth, may you both rest in peace.

SUBJECT: A MOST FRIGHTENING HALLOWEEN STORY SAT JAN 26, 2008 2:56 PM

Halloween is almost upon us and being a paranormal investigator and ghost writer, you would think I would embrace this holiday. I have one foot in reality and one foot in the paranormal. I walk in between two worlds. This is my life. You can say, I live and breathe the paranormal. But, sometimes the paranormal becomes too much a part of my life and Halloween is almost here, I want to retreat into a dark corner of my home and keep away from those kids with their Halloween masks on. Yes, I will retreat from Halloween this year.

It's October 15, the time is midnight. I get a loud knocking on my door. I think to myself...'who could it be at this late hour?' My dogs Pika and T-Rex instead of barking, retreat to the back bedroom and hide underneath my bed. Okay, now I'm scared. I approach the door to see who is knocking. The door slams open. On my doorstep I recognize 15 well-known monsters at my doorstep. They are: Freddy Krueger, Chuckie, Leatherface, Jason Voorhees, Michael Myers, Leprechaun, Dr. Andre Delambrea aka the Fly, Count Orlok, Phantom of the Opera, a Djinn named Wishmaster, Ghostface who was made famous by the movie 'Scream', The Fisherman made famous by the movie 'I Know What You Did Last Summer', Pinhead of Hellraiser, Jigsaw of Saw, Hannibal Lecter.

Freddie Krueger looks at me and says..."So, your the one they call 'Paranormal Paul', we will either rip you apart limb by limb, or you can tell us a good Halloween story!" Paul: "This can't be real, you guys are not real!" Pinhead: "What ever a man can imagine, is real, you must have such sights to show us!" As Pinhead starts summoning these chains with little hooks, I started spinning a Halloween story, I might as well talk about the origin of Halloween.

The monsters at my doorstep started gathering around me, all of them hungry for a good Halloween story. I start off by telling them that the origins of Halloween started with the ancient Celtic festival of Samhain. The Celts celebrated their New Year, which began on November 1st. For the Celts, it was the end of Summer and harvest and the beginning of the cold Winter that brings early darkness. It was the time where the living and the dead interacted. This was the time, that the ghosts of the dead came to visit the living. The Celts to appease the dead would wear costumes made up of animal skins. Their masks were of animal heads. They would dance all night long to raging bonfires. This was the origin of Halloween.

Count Orlok: "I believe we all know how Halloween started, except for Leatherface". Leatherface: "Ugghhh!" Paul: "Okay, okay, there is more, did you know there are real monsters here in this world we call Earth?" "I'm not talking about you guys, let me tell you about some of the real monsters that roam this planet, making the people of this world take heed to the things we refer as paranormal."

How many of you know that the story of Victor Frankenstein and his hideous creation have a foundation of truth? Mary Wollstonecraft Shelly once visited a castle, called Castle Frankenstein in Strasbourg. When I was an Army MP in Germany, I visited Castle Frankenstein, it's an impressive place and has a lot of history. Victor Frankenstein was based on the real life Johann Konrad Dippel (1673-1734). He was born in Germany at Castle Frankenstein. The townsfolk thought Dippel was a mad scientist, he dabbled with alchemy. He was doing pseudoscientific experiments with the attempt of turning lead into gold. He later tried to 'engender life in the dead' by playing around with animal corpses and later human corpses. Sometimes the worse kind of monster, is the human monster. Was Dippel a man who was merely trying to reanimate life for a good purpose, or for an evil purpose?

We all know that Bram Stoker's Dracula was based on a Romanian Prince named Vlad Dracula (1431-1476). Vlad Dracula fought against the Turks. He tortured Turks in his dungeons, he would impale the Turks with long poles and raise the long poles over an area where he would feast and admire his grisly collection of impaled Turks. Vlad Dracula's home was in Transylvania in the Carpathian Mountains of Romania. Dracula is a legend enriched with history, books, movies and TV. Dracula is a monster that will live with us forever.

Halloween is a time to be frightened and when people hear stories about ghosts, incubus, succubus, poltergeists, dopplegangers, demons, it brings chills down their spines. The world can be a very spooky place. Even fairies, gnomes, pixies, trolls, leprechauns, elves can be scary. Why? They are the little people. Some of these little people can create fairy circles. Could these stories, been the experiences of ancient people witnessing aliens? Grays are small, they are known to abduct people. Fairie and their like are known to be small, they are known to abduct people, especially children. There are other similarities. Let's explore more. Fairy circles. Could this be the landing sites of UFOs or what we call Crop Circles? If we take it a step further, ancient people would sacrifice animals and even their own kind. There would be blood spilled to appease the gods. Cattle mutilations are blamed on aliens. Could ancient man have known that aliens were abducting their animals and that is why they would have ceremonies to sacrifice animals, so the aliens wouldn't come down and take their animals? Are the gods and fairies of our myths actually been aliens that have been with man since the dawn of time? We thinks of aliens as scary, that is why you see so many kids wearing alien Halloween masks. It's just one more thing, to make us afraid.

The world is filled with monsters. The Loch Ness Monster, Bigfoot, Sasquatch, The Abominable Snowman, Chupacabra. How about the Mothman that terrorized Charleston and Point Pleasant from November 1966 to December 1967? Could contamination at the West Virginia Ordnance Works have opened a dimensional portal and brought in the Mothmen? Perhaps the Mothmen looked like monsters, with their large leathery wings, but perhaps they were alien or dimensional entities that were looking out for the welfare of mankind and tried to warn us of a bridge collapse that would take the lives of many. After the bridge collapsed in this small town, the Mothmen were never seen again in this area. There are stories they have appeared in other areas of the world and when they appear, there is a disaster that happens afterwards.

You hear about monsters all the time. Like the Mamlambo - the South African man-eating river monster that has the head of a horse and the body of a fish. There are monster squids washing up on the beaches of Australia. There may be a living Brontosaurus in the Congo of Africa. Even England is plagued by their large phantom black panthers that roam their countryside. England in the past was terrorized by Springheel Jack that hopped around from one roof to another. The town's people noticed that Springheel Jack left hoof marks on their roofs. He was known to have incredible jumping powers. So as you can see the whole Earth is surrounded by monsters or scary entities.

What makes Halloween a success is that people love being scared. When Halloween approaches, we think of the fictional monsters like Michael Myers, Jigsaw. Jigsaw: "As for us being fictional, that is your opinion." Paul: "Okay, Jigsaw, I am just trying to make a point." People experience the reality of day-to-day life, they get up, they go to work, they come home and watch TV or whatever else they may do, before preparing for work again. They crave excitement, they wonder in their minds during the time of Halloween, if the world has monsters or scary things that go bump in the night. That is why, people love ghost stories. In our hearts we seek out the truth, we want to believe there is more out there. The universe is a very mysterious place. The existence of the universe is one big mystery, the existence of life on this planet is a big mystery. If we seek out the mysterious, we will face the mysterious. There is more than the reality that is about us, behind every dark corner, there lies a mystery. We just need to seek it out and find it. Halloween is a time to scare people, it's a time to be scared. Horror is in our DNA, it's the primitive essence of our being. Early man up to present day man, has witnessed the horror and atrocities of war. What man saw, scared him. We now want to be scared, but feel safe, that is why we turn to fictional horror, we can safely sit in a movie theater and be scared, but we know that we are relatively safe.

Halloween will always be a part of us, it's part of our souls. Because of this, you guys will always be a success and have many sequels to your movies! Ghostface: "Enough talk, let's rip this guy apart!" Paul: "Hold on, if you rip me apart, who will tell the scary stories?" Chuckie: "He does make a good point, we're going to be watching you and HPI, and if you ever slack off with your stories, we will be back!" Hannibal Lecter: "Rats! I would have enjoyed dining on the cerebral cortex of his brain, adding a dash of fava beans in a tossed salad and topping it off with a nice Chianti." Before Hannibal could finish the word Chianti, there is a rip in time and space that opens up in the dark cloudy skies and I watch these movie monsters dissipate into the celluloid rip that has touched upon our own fabric of reality. I wipe off the sweat from my brow and contemplate the situation that has happened. I now know that I better not run from Halloween, I'm part of this holiday if I like it or not. I get on the phone with Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe, President of HPI and ask her when the next investigation is taking place, because I am ready to tackle the unknown and I am ready to tell the stories of our investigations. The more investigations there are, it's a matter of time, before we will discover the truth! Happy Halloween everyone! Keep it fun and safe!
